

KENNETH HONG

Vocational Track Job Coach

MR KENNETH HONG is currently a Job Coach working with students who are in the Vocational Track at Pathlight School.

He graduated with a Honours Degree (Second Upper Class) in Psychology from James Cook University. Professionally, Kenneth is a trained special educator under the Ministry of Education (Singapore) and a certified Adult Educator from the Advanced Certificate in Learning and Performance (ACLPL) under the Workplace Skills Qualification. He is currently pursuing a Diploma in Adult Continuing Education (DACE).

Kenneth has garnered extensive experience working in the field of autism for over 10 years. In his early years, he worked directly with individuals on the autism spectrum and their families in a special school setting.

In his current scope of work at Pathlight School, he works with graduating students from the Vocational Track by transitioning them to appropriate post school outcomes according to their strengths and abilities. He is keenly aware of the autism landscape, various post school outcomes, and understands the key competencies required for students to transit successfully to their next learning or work environments.

Kenneth is currently heading the professional development in his track and provides training programmes to upscale the competencies of his fellow colleagues through coaching and mentoring.
